'Eco-car' earns top slot at GCC teen BizCamp

An "eco-car," which takes advantage of the wind it creates to run a turbine and produce electricity, was deemed the best idea for an invention at the recently concluded BizCamp for teenagers at Greenfield Community College.

Wesley K. Mason, 14, of Deerfield, dreamed up the car.

Other inventions included a "microwave oven for the lazy" which is voice-activated, by Timothy K. Zingler, 16, of Greenfield and a solar-powered, portable music video player, the joint idea of Phillipa K. Anastos, 14, of Greenfield and Vladislav L. Blanton, 13, of Shutesbury.
